TUTT'S PILLS

SYMPTOMS OF A TORPID LIVER.
Loss of Appetite, Bowels inactive, Pain in the Head, with a dull sensation in the back part, Pain under the shoulder blade, fullness after eating, with a distention of the abdomen, or body on mind, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, with a feeling of being oppressed, and a feeling of general weakness, particularly at the loins, Bile in the stools, or yellow stools, Headache generally over the right eye, Disturbance, with a full dream, highly colored urine, and CONSTIPATION.

TUTT'S PILLS are especially adapted to such cases, and cause a change of feeling as to the condition of the system.

They increase the Appetite, and cause the body to take on flesh, thus the system is invigorated, and by their gentle action on the bowels, regular stools are produced. Price 25 cents. 35 Murray St., N. Y.

TUTT'S HAIR DYE.

GRAY HAIR OR WHISKERS CHANGE TO A GLOSSY BLACK by a single application of this DYE. It imparts a natural color. Acts instantaneously. Sold by Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of $1.00.

OFFICE, 35 MURRAY ST., N. Y.

Some of the so-called "strong-minded" women of San Francisco are discussing the adoption of male attire, bringing forward the question as to whether those females who might be pleased to thus array and exhibit themselves, would be liable, under the law, to arrest and prosecution. There can be no more ridiculous misnomer than the adjective "strong-minded" when applied to women who make no nobler use of time, money and their quota of God-given ability, than the discussion of such senseless, useless questions. The true women of to-day, who heartily and conscientiously labor to relieve the sufferings of their poorer and weaker sisters, will clothe themselves in garments fitted for their work, in full accordance with well-known physiological laws, and the innate rule of modesty and gentleness, without asking the permission of any officer or ruler in the land. The assistance of women of knowledge and intellect is needed, and is given in behalf of those more ignorant and over-burdened, but their work is greatly hindered by a following of foolish, unwomanly disciples.

A dispatch dated Ismahia Sept. 8, says a general move to the front has been ordered. Our forces at Kussassan locks will amount on Saturday to 15,000 men, with fifty guns. Only one correspondent will be allowed to each newspaper, and each telegram will be limited to 500 words. The attack on the enemy is confidently expected on Monday, or at the latest on Tuesday.

The Bedouin chief Abou Pasha has called out 6,000 men and joined Arabi Pasha.

There were nine new cases of yellow fever at Pensacola, Fla., Thursday. The Board of Health has made an earnest appeal for assistance.

There were forty-eight new cases of fever at Brownsville, Tex., Thursday. There are four new cases of fever among the troops at Fort Brown.

A post-mortem examination of the child who died at Newport, R. I., on the 7th, reported of Asiatic cholera, was made Thursday. It was found that death was occasioned by cholera, but not by Asiatic cholera, and that there is no cause for alarm, as it is not likely to spread.

At the sale of the Danger breeding stud at London yesterday, the six-year-old chestnut horse, Rayon Dora, was bought by W. L. Scott, of Erie, Pa., for $30,000.

Silver-Plated Sentiment

To worship something at a distance is an ancient custom to have peculiar significance for some of our people. To fall in love with a actor, a tenor or a circus performer seems to be a specialty of our existence. They look at these interesting individuals across intervening space, and allow their fancy to work its own sweet will, until actors, tenors and circus performers are touched into the most magnificent of heroes.

The stricken young lady pays his photograph in a hundred different positions. They are appropriately framed in wood, gilt, velvet, metal, wicker, work, and in a pleasing variety of different styles, and are arranged with care and skill about her bed-room. She has his autograph. She wrote for it, and the distinguished star has kindly answered.

Then she meets him on Broadway. Actors do walk out occasionally and mingle with the common crowd. She falls more deeply in love than ever, and this time she hits on her head. To put it mildly, she raves. She must have an introduction.

She borrows her friends, she goes into the amateur detective business, she exhibits an ingenuity of mind and a fertility of resource that would have made her fortune as a novelist. At last she accomplishes her purpose. She is introduced.

And then she learns for the first time that fancy has a power, like the frost, to transform commonplace things into forms of transcendent beauty. All the decoration, the color, and the pretty accessories with which her fancy had endowed the object of her admiration are swept away, and he stands before her as dull, as dead and as dreary as her last year's bonnet.

She has a bitter taste in her mouth, and something of the freshness and glory of life has vanished. But her heart still yearns for the infinite, the unknown. Now that she cannot sit on one side of the footlights, and looking across that magic barrier, weave romances about and around some wooden figure on the other side, which makes her little heart beat, she stands at the window and looks out eagerly into the long wide streets, and feels like the boy who lingers around the wharves and watches the ships weigh anchor and sail away. The common river is turned to liquid gold touched by the dying sunlight. The vessel with rotten hull and creaking masts seems a whited sailer, splendor moving away to countries more gorgeous than the sunset that is now flushing the western horizon.

And so the girl looks out into the streets which speedily take on the mysterious beauty of the avenues that wander and shimmer through the land of dreams. Who are all these people hurrying along? Whence came they, and whither go? Her imagination is taken captive. Her thoughts reach out into this strange country. She leans out of the window and lets loose her affections once again, precisely as Noah loosed the dove from the ark.

The car conductor smiles. There is nothing vulgar in this. This cannot be called flirtation. It bears almost the same relation to flirtation that indignation does to aesthetic transfiguration. After a few smiles, she goes out one day and enters the car. There is glory about the car before which the chariot that flame and flash through social history become dull affairs, and the car conductor, who goes on a periodical strike, is nobler, grander and a great deal bolder than the most famous of ancient characters. However, as the opportunities for conversation with the conductor grow greater and she becomes better acquainted with his bad teeth, his bad English and other similar matters, things of life begin to resume their natural relations, and she discovers that the car conductor is a car conductor.

Unfortunately, experiences like these do not seem to teach our fair friends any valuable truths. They are disgusted with the actor, but they turn to the car conductor. They are like the victim of morphine, who, as time passes on, and new horrors rush upon the scene, wants something stronger. Or perhaps they may be more properly compared to the New York bearier, who leaves one house in despair, and resorts to another, with the fond delusion that it may be better, and finds it worse.

So, when actors, tenors, orchestra musicians, car conductors, pedestrians, and perhaps clergymen, have all been tried and found wanting, she plunges still more deeply into the wilderness, and sighs for—she knows not whom, as the story-writers tersely put it. Prompted by condemnable yearnings of this description, seminary young ladies have been known to take the list of a prominent college, and having selected a pretty name, have written to the owner of it, soliciting a correspondence. This is technically called "flaking," probably because the young lady drops a line, with the expectation of securing a return.

One young lady who wrote thus, discovered after a while that she was corresponding with a negro. Whatever the colors were in which she had painted her correspondent, he probably was not colored in that way. The tint had not been on her palette, and was not quite to her taste. The correspondence was discontinued, and so the story of these sentimental arrangements continues. As has been intimated, they go from bad to worse. It is true that the lady referred to here put the threatened color out of her existence. But this girl having gone to the length of corresponding with a negro, the next ambitious maiden wants to marry one. She is not particular who it is. She takes the nearest at hand. Probably it is her father's coachman.

They ride off and apply to a clergyman to tie the matrimonial knot. Seized with a sudden attack of conscientiousness, he refuses. Then the girl blazes up, as Miss Deyo did at Newburg a short time ago. And the marriage ceremony is performed. Of course, this young lady and others similarly situated find out their mistake just as the other young ladies do, who have been described above. But there is this important difference. They find their mistake out after marriage. We are really sorry to say that the young lady just spoken of is now in the poor house. The negro she married should be in the penitentiary. —American Queen.

Cleveland Races.

Cleveland, September 7th.—A Cleveland special gives the following story of the owner of the new fast horse, developed here yesterday:

"I'll show you fellows that I have got no 'dollar' boss," said Ritchart, the owner of the brown gelding, St. Louis, at the race track. His tone was that of virtuous indignation. Ritchart is a sport-loving fellow, who lives two miles and a half out of Foster, Iowa. Some time ago he went down into Kentucky and bought this specimen of horse flesh. He entered him in the 2:22 class. He was a stranger here. The turf-sharps were inclined to laugh at Ritchart for a greenhorn. In the pools St. Louis was shunned by the regulars, even at $1 against a field in which were such horses as Mollie Middleton, Allegheny Boy, Fanny Wilkes, Ben Star and others, to the number of twelve starters; but as the selling proceeded, Ritchart was observed filling his pockets with slips, buying his own horse at $1, which against the field made an average equal to $1 against $150. Ritchart took all he could get, and the race began. It was for three out of five. The first two heats were won by Fanny Wilkes, Ritchart's horse, St. Louis, lagging away in the rear, scarcely saving his distance, but he won the last three with the greatest of ease in remarkable time, and leaving the rest away behind.

An Editors Opinion.

[Stamford, Conn., Herald, July 26th, 1892.] We are satisfied from what we see and hear that there is no property medicine on the market that is so popular and is doing so much good for suffering humanity as Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure. The testimonials published by this firm are a wonder in their way, each one having the autographic signature of its author. This conclusively proves them to be genuine and that the parties giving them may be relied upon. The demand for the remedies comes from all parts of the country, and the sales must be immense. While we do not make a practice of endorsing property medicines, we have no hesitation in recommending Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, because we know it to be a good thing and that the firm is composed of fair, square dealing business men who never "go back" on the printer.

No More Thumb-screw Examinations.

ALEXANDRIA, Sept. 8. There is no further danger of prisoners being tortured, Sir Edward Malet, British Consul General, having taken measures for the prevention of the practice. He says he had great difficulty in persuading the Arabs that the use of thumb screws was unnecessary in conducting the examination of prisoners.

Telegraphic advices received at Washington Thursday night from General Sheridan and Pope casts doubts upon the correctness of the published reports of a Northern Cheyenne outbreak. No positive information, however, relative to the reported trouble has been received from the military authorities located in the Indian Territory. Up to a late hour Friday night no response had been received by Acting Secretary Joslyn, of the Interior Department from the Indian agents at the Cheyenne agencies.

"A heavy rain storm and flood prevailed in San Antonio Thursday. The river rose eight feet. Houses were flooded and cattle and horses drowned. Hundreds of bales of cotton floated down San Pedro creek. One man is missing. It is thought he is drowned. This has been the heaviest fall known for years, ever six inches falling in during eighteen hours.

One hundred and seventy persons died at Manila of cholera Friday, and 229 deaths occurred in neighboring villages.

Late advices state that the cholera is raging in Cechin, China.

BREVITIES.

A. W. Doolittle, of Stillwater, is stopping at the Depot Hotel.

Services will be held in the M. E. Church to-day as follows: Love Feast at 9:45 A. M. Preaching by Elder Luke at 11 A. M., and Union service in the evening.

A young men's Republican Club was formed last evening, and in less than twenty minutes forty-nine young Republicans signed their names to the roll.

Cassidy has made his will, politically speaking. He telegraphed to a friend yesterday: "In Cassidy, which is probable, politically speaking, please act as my executor."

W. Sanders, the undertaker, is suffering from a severe lame back brought on by over exertion at the fire Friday morning. In his endeavor to aid in saving other people's property, he forgot himself, and nearly broke his vertebrae in two.

A cloud-burst of hostility Monday, September 11th, from morning until night. F. Levy & Bro. will hold a mammoth clearance sale of stockings for ladies, gents and children. Let no one miss this sale, for it will offer an opportunity for the rarest bargains ever realized. No goods will leave the store unless paid for.

A Yarn.

A communication appeared in the Carson Tribune of Thursday last, which being signed "P—," showed that his Royal Nibbs must have been slightly off his nut, when he manufactured a yarn out of partial, instead of whole cloth, relative to the late fire. The plain facts of the case are these: During the excitement always attending on a fire, Mr. Small, seeing Mrs. Grove struggling to rescue some furniture from the flames, while carrying a baby in her arms, gallantly stepped forward and offered his services to Mrs. Grove to carry the child to his wife at the Arcade Hotel, who would take care of it until Mr. and Mrs. Grove had looked after their property, an offer which was most gratefully accepted. But therefore carried the babe down to the Arcade and had his wife care for it, hence the yarn. A price has been set on the head of Mr. Parkinson for his atrocious yarn.

An Additional Department to the Public School.

The School Trustees have decided to establish a Kindergarten department in the old school house. The object being to reduce the number in the primary room, and at the same time give a thorough trial of the now popular kindergarten system. The little ones will be admitted from the ages of five to seven. Mrs. Scoville has been engaged to instruct the school, and with this lady in charge the parents may be certain that their children will acquire knowledge rapidly and be entertained and happy while so doing. The large and pleasant "South" room is to be filled up with all the necessary paraphernalia. Mr. Laycock is painting the floor in circles and squares for use in calisthenics and other exercises. The school will probably open on Monday next. This advance movement of the Trustees will receive approval and encouragement from all our enterprising citizens.

Charitable House Cleaning.

The workers in the Methodist Society have, during the past week, been busy cleaning and renovating the inside of their church. The disfigured places in the ceiling and corners have been skillfully repaired and the carpet throughout the building taken up and relaid. During the coming week fresh paint and varnish will be unsparingly used, so at the meeting of conference, which will take place on the 28th of the present month, this pleasant edifice will be in spick and span Sunday go-to-meeting order.

A Runaway.

Yesterday morning, about eight o'clock, an Italian vegetable wagon started on a rampage down Virginia street, and crossing the bridge at a hot gallop, disappeared in the direction of Hufkickers. A couple of hours after some Italians returned with the team, and as the outfit was uninjured, it is presumed they reached home in safety, luckily for the vegetable peddler.

Thanks Returned.

Daniel McArthur was buried by his friends yesterday afternoon, and his brother, Thomas McArthur, desires to return his thanks to the people of Reno for their extreme kindness to both him and his dead brother.

BLACKLEG.

Appearance at least of the Dreaded Disease on the Meadows.

It appears that the much dreaded blackleg or anthrax fever has made its appearance in the valley, and farmers desirous of not losing their cattle should take prompt measures against it. It first appeared on the ranch of Mrs. Blaisdell, and A. J. Smith has already lost on that ranch a fine thoroughbred milch cow worth $90. For the benefit of the farmers the following history of the disease, its characteristics and manner of treatment are given from the report of Dr. James Law, of Cornell University.

HISTORY OF THE DISEASE.

It first made its appearance in the village of Otto, Cataraugus county, New York, about the 27th of February, 1881, on the farm of a Mr. Allen. This farm lies on high ground about half a mile from the village, and was out of the way of all cattle traffic, the cattle on the farm having been all raised there, even to the bull, which was one of the common herd. Thus isolated, the conditions furnished presumptive evidence against infection from without, outside of a supposition that the tenant was a German who might have had visits from friends (emigrants or otherwise) carrying with them infected clothing. Within from five to eight days Mr. Allen lost seven cows from the unknown complaint. A Mr. Drake, two miles distant, had lost a cow, and so on—cows kept on dying in widely separated farms.

THE SYMPTOMS.

Temperature from 103 to 107 degrees. The affected animal is dull, sluggish, with hind limbs drawn forward, and back slightly arched as if from abdominal pain; flanks hollow; soft, doughy sensation in the region of the spleen; eyes dull, glassy and retracted. The visible mucous membranes have a dusky hue; there is much debility, and sometimes the fetal membranes are projected from the vulva. In many cases a fetid diarrhea will exist, and the dung bloody.

THE SUPPOSED CAUSES.

In seeking to ascertain the cause of the outbreak, Dr. Law found that the land was mainly loamy or gravelly, but was underlaid at certain points by a subsoil of hardpan, which determined the retention of moisture and favored the preservation of the anthrax germ. As to the original introduction of the germ, the Doctor found a presumptive explanation in the history of the pigs on the place. In the course of four years prior as many as 74 pigs, mostly western, had died on the farm. The dead animals were sometimes allowed to lie in the lot adjoining the pig pen till they became very offensive, and when buried were mostly covered up in a flat place where a loamy soil covered a dense hardpan, so that it did not readily dry out, and gave ample opportunity for the preservation of the anthrax germs. The cattle had had access to the lot where the dead pigs lay decomposing, and also received hay from the meadows where the pigs had been buried. From either of these sources they may have received the anthrax germ, as in both places those that had been preserved in the depth of the soil were liable to be brought up and deposited on the surface by earthworms. There they could be collected with the hay, licked from the surface of the soil, or blown on the winds to mingle with the food or water.

THE BEST MEANS OF PREVENTION.

Are stated to be the immediate destruction of the carcass by burning, and the disinfection of barns, pig pens and yards with chloride of lime and quicklime scattered in the yards, and applied to buildings in the form of a whitewash, containing a quarter of a pound of chloride of lime to each gallon of water. The buildings should also be fumigated with sulphur, and the manure, made for a fortnight before and the same time after the outbreak, should be burnt. Finally the whole herd of cows should be put on the following diet: Chlorate of potash, 2 drachms; bi-sulphate of soda, 4 drachms, carbolic acid, 1 drachm, to be dissolved in water and mixed in the food of each animal every morning. Each sick cow should be given in addition every night one drachm of iodide of potash and two grains of bi-chromate of potash. If these precautions are taken and the farmer keeps a close lookout on the health and appearance of his animals, the disease will be promptly stamped out of the valley and little harm done.

A Correction.

Owing to an unfortunate error, the word irresponsibility instead of insufficiency was used in making mention of the award on the bids for burying the county indigent dead, as can be seen in the record of the proceedings of the Board of Commissioners. Mr. Beemer in wording his bid, neglected, unfortunately, to specify the place of burial. This rendered his bid insufficient, invalid, or irresponsible, in the sole sense in which the latter term was used. It was the bid solely referred to, and not Mr. Beemer, who is an old resident and has enough backers to make him entirely responsible in any business.

STILL SEARCHING.

The Bodies of Larcombe and Son Not Yet Found.

Last Thursday and day before yesterday quite a party, composed of Alvaro Evans, Wm. Jones, S. Beemer, James Kennedy, Nick Hamersmith, Charley Williams, M. Upson, W. Sanders, Jim Holladay and three others, started up the river and dragged it from the point where the searchers had ceased the day before. A large drag-hook was used in the deep places, having a long handle of gas pipe. Two boats were used, besides which those of the party who could swim, and whom continued immersion in cold water would not injure, waded the river in every direction. At the deep hole where the accident occurred Billy Jones dived ten successive times, and the horses were secured and towed over the dam, where they are still under water. It was thought the two bodies might have been deep in the hole, under the horses, and much attention was given to the spot. Billy receives everywhere the highest encomiums for his skill and industry. He had a rope attached to his body, so that in case of possible accident while diving he could be hauled up. Alvaro Evans and Kennedy looked like beavers in wading the river. After working down the river some distance, at the earnest solicitations of Mrs. Larcombe, the river was worked back again, the lady having an intuition that the bodies had lodged back near the dam. But all efforts were futile. Yesterday the searchers had reached a point in the river near Maston's, where a deep hole has been partially explored. Sanders may take a party of four men down this morning when the search will be continued. Though giant powder was fired at various points it produced no result, as the Truckee water flows from Lake Tahoe, from which bodies never rise, it is hardly likely that the bodies are very far from where the accident took place—such at any rate is the prevalent opinion.

Further Proceedings of the County Commissioners.

The following additional proceedings of the County Commissioners, at their meetings last week, are here noted:

Relief to the following extent was granted. Mrs. Whitman, $5; Mrs. Clancy, $10; Mrs. Cook, $10; Mrs. Negley, $20; the petition of Mrs. Tay being rejected.

Four hundred and ninety-seven dollars and seventy cents were ordered transferred from the Estates of Deceased Persons Fund to the Contingent Fund.

H. F. Pearson was authorized to do all necessary repairs to the Wadsworth bridge.

The petition of Geo. D. Winters and others, praying for the establishment of a school district in Reop county, to be known as Salt Marsh District, No 18, was granted, and the district described as all that portion of Reop county lying between the north line of Township 25 and the north line of Township 36.

The petition of the Woman's Temperance Union for the building of a hydrant and purchase of a lamp for their building on Virginia street, was not granted.

The monthly statements of the several county officers were ordered placed on file.

The bids for the burial of the indigent dead, namely, S. Beemer and W. Sanders, were received and ordered placed on file, and after due consideration it was ordered that W. Sanders be, and he is hereby, granted said contract, as per bid on file, at $25 each, commencing September 1, 1892, and ending August 31, 1893, the Board rejecting Beemer's bid from the fact that he did not state where he would bury said dead, the Board considering this very essential.

The sum of $1,033 21 was ordered transferred from the General Fund to the Salary Fund.

John Bowman was allowed the privilege of purchasing all lumber, boards and remnants in the Court House front and rear yards for $7 50.

The Board then adjourned till Monday, Sept. 18th, unless specially called. On September 6th the Board held a special meeting, Joseph Frey, Chairman, and R. S. Osborn, Clerk, being present. The only business transacted was the appointment of R. H. Joy as Registry Agent of Washoe Township. Some time since Roger Power, Justice of the Peace there, resigned, and R. G. Webster was appointed in his stead, but refusing to serve, necessitated action by the Board.

Frank Leslie's Sunday Magazine.

The number of October overflows with good things; the contents are exceedingly varied, and afford delightful and edifying reading. "The Religion of the Ancient Egyptians," by J. Newenham Hoare; "The study of Biology at Princeton College;" "Lace-making;" "The Mount Arsen Road in Switzerland;" "The Copts of Egypt and their Church," are among the noteworthy, profusely illustrated articles. There are some admirable sketches and essays, one by Rev. Dr. Talmage, "The Old Homestead," is replete with charming ideas. Marion Harland's serial, "A Good Fellow," is concluded, and McDonald's "Winged and Wanting" is continued with increasing interest. Among the numerous poems is a very beautiful one, "The South Wind," by the late Fanny Parnell, which was received by the editor on the day of her death. "The Home Pulpit" has a sermon by Dr. Talmage, "Christianity as a Delusion." There are also "Wit, Wisdom and Pathos of Childhood," "The Collection Basket," "Information for the Curious," "The Bow Bent," etc., etc., and an abundance of brief articles, paragraphs, etc., of great interest, full of information, and entertaining to all classes of readers. The price is 25 cents a number; $3 a year, postpaid. Address Frank Leslie, Publisher, 53, 55 and 57 Park Place, New York.

MISCELLANEOUS.

DR. SPINNEY

NO. 11 KEARNEY ST.

Treats All Chronic and Special Diseases.

YOUNG

WHO may be suffering from the effects of youthful follies or indiscretions, will do well to avail themselves of this, the greatest boon ever laid at the altar of suffering humanity. Dr. Spinney will guarantee to forfeit $500 for every case of Seminal Weakness or private disease of any kind or character which he undertakes and fails to cure.

MIDDLE-AGED MEN.

There are many at the age of thirty to sixty, who are troubled with too frequent evacuations of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting or burning sensation, and a weakening of the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. On examining the urinary deposits aropy sediment will often be found, and sometimes small particles of albumen will appear, the color will be a thin milky blue, again changing to a dark and torpid appearance. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is the second stage of seminal weakness. Dr. S. will guarantee a perfect cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration to the genito-urinary organs.

Office hours—10 to 4 and 6 to 8. Sundays from 10 to 11 A. M. Consultation free. Thorough examination and advice, $5.

Call or address,
